Visit just one or perhaps two or all three of the three famous London museums. The Natural History Museum has a huge variety of animals; the V&A has amazing artifacts and the Science Museum lets you experience major advances in science and technology. Entry to all museums is free, but the Science and Natural History museums ask you to pre-book online, but you can just turn up and queue. Special exhibitions require additional paid tickets on the day. For other London venues, the tube station is 5 minutes away.

(This trip requires 8 passengers)
